INTRODUCTION

The National Council on Adult Jewish Education of the American Association for Jewish Education is composed of seventeen national organizations engaged in the field of adult Jewish education. Its aims are to serve as a national clearinghouse for information in the field of adult Jewish education, to stimulate community interest in adult Jewish education, and to promote cooperative efforts among organizations engaged in adult Jewish education.

This Guide to Adult Jewish Educational Materials, the first program aid prepared by the NCAJE is representative rather than comprehensive in scope. It includes selected materials published by the 17 member organizations affiliated with the Council.

In the preparation of this Guide, the professional members of the Council were asked to provide briefly annotated bibliographies of the adult Jewish education materials published by their respective organizations, which they deem useful as program-aids to the professional or lay leader in the field of adult Jewish education. These separate bibliographies were collated and re-classified.

The aim of the Guide is to provide the professional and, above all, the lay leader in the field of adult Jewish education with information about available resources and program aids in various subject areas and fields of interest to the adult Jewish educator.

Materials contained in this Guide are available from the respective member organizations. Persons interested in obtaining any of the items listed as well as any additional materials published by the affiliated member organizations of the Council should communicate directly with the Adult Education Departments of the respective organizations. See page 53.
